

Restoration of immune responsiveness in early thymectomized mice by transplantation of histocompatible adult thymus

European Journal of Immunology

6, 711-714

DOI: 10.1002/eji.1830061010

Citation Report

#	ARTICLE	IF	CITATIONS
1	Xenopus laevis as a model for the study of immunology. Developmental and Comparative Immunology, 1978, 2, 5-13.	2.3	31
2	Evolutionary immunobiology and the problem of the T-cell receptor. Developmental and Comparative Immunology, 1978, 2, 203-218.	2.3	9
3	Isolated lymphocytes can restore allograft rejection capacity of early-thymectomized Xenopus. Developmental and Comparative Immunology, 1978, 2, 637-645.	2.3	13
4	Restoration of antibody forming capacity in early-thymectomized Xenopus by injecting thymocytes. Developmental and Comparative Immunology, 1980, 4, 553-557.	2.3	5
5	Role of injected thymocytes in reconstituting cellular and humoral immune responses in early thymectomized Xenopus: Use of triploid markers. Developmental and Comparative Immunology, 1980, 4, 679-690.	2.3	8
6	Thymocyte Precursors in Early-Thymectomized Xenopus: Migration into and Differentiation in Allogeneic Thymus Grafts. Developmental and Comparative Immunology, 1982, 6, 509-518.	2.3	9
7	Restoration of antibody responsiveness in early thymectomized Xenopus by implantation of major histocompatibility complex-mismatched larval thymus. European Journal of Immunology, 1982, 12, 546-551.	2.9	16
8	Quantitative study of regression and regeneration of the thymic cell population after X-irradiation in the newt Pleurodeles waltlii Michah. Wilhelm Roux's Archives of Developmental Biology, 1984, 194, 69-78.	1.4	0
9	Ontogeny of Thymus-Dependent Immune Responses and Lymphoid Cell Differentiation in Xenopus laevis. (immune response/ontogeny/thymus/lymphocytes/Xenopus). Development Growth and Differentiation, 1987, 29, 297-305.	1.5	5
10	Histological organization of the spleen: implications for immune functions in amphibians. Research in Immunology, 1991, 142, 355-359.	0.9	16
11	Demonstration of cells involved in rejection of tolerogenic grafts in tolerant Xenopus. Developmental and Comparative Immunology, 1993, 17, 439-447.	2.3	8
12	The effect of reconstitution with cryopreserved thymocytes on their vivo antibody response to sheep red blood cells, Aeromonas salmonicida, and DNP-KLH, in adult long term thymectomised rainbow trout (Oncorhynchus mykiss). Fish and Shellfish Immunology, 1996, 6, 371-381.	3.6	10
13	Rapid and selective removal of larval erythrocytes from systemic circulation during metamorphosis of the bullfrog, Rana catesbeiana. Development Growth and Differentiation, 1999, 41, 639-643.	1.5	18
14	Immune System Organs of Amphibians. , 2017, , .		4
15	Double-duty conventional dendritic cells in the amphibian Xenopus as the prototype for antigen presentation to B cells. European Journal of Immunology, 2018, 48, 430-440.	2.9	27
16	Phylogeny of the Emergence of T-B Collaboration in Humoral Immunity. , 1980, 9, 55-89.		8
17	RES Structure and Function of the Amphibia. , 1982, , 423-459.		10
18	Ontogeny of Immunological Functions in Amphibians. , 1982, , 633-657.		4