

The feudal structure of global health and its implication

BMJ Global Health

7, e010603

DOI: 10.1136/bmjgh-2022-010603

Citation Report

#	ARTICLE	IF	CITATIONS
1	Is decolonisation sufficient?. BMJ Global Health, 2022, 7, e011564.	4.7	6
2	Using antioppressive teaching principles to transform a graduate global health course at Johns Hopkins University. BMJ Global Health, 2023, 8, e011587.	4.7	2
3	Unintentional injuries in adolescents: a neglected issue in global health. The Lancet Child and Adolescent Health, 2023, 7, 447-449.	5.6	0
4	Global health and the elite capture of decolonization: On reformism and the possibilities of alternate paths. PLOS Global Public Health, 2023, 3, e0002103.	1.6	7
5	How and why snakebite became a global health priority: a policy analysis. BMJ Global Health, 2023, 8, e011923.	4.7	3
6	Diversityâ€™A Challenge in Global Health. , 2023, , 161-167.		0
7	The burden of decolonising global health. BMJ, The, 0, , p2597.	6.0	0
8	Instruments of Colonial Administration and White Saviorism: The Past and Present of Public Health. , 2024, , 1-19.		0
9	Broadening relevance and representation in global health medical education research: centring context, content, and voice. Canadian Medical Education Journal, 0, , .	0.4	0
10	Reflective questioning to guide socially just global health reform: a narrative review and expert elicitation. International Journal for Equity in Health, 2024, 23, .	3.5	0
11	Strengthening diversity, inclusiveness and justice in the injury community. Injury Prevention, 2024, 30, 3-4.	2.4	0
12	Dismantling the feudal structure of global health by promoting traditional medical knowledge in global health ecosystem. The National Medical Journal of India, 0, 36, 204-204.	0.3	0