The aryl hydrocarbon receptor-dependent disruption o WB-F344 epithelial cells is linked with induction of surv apoptosis

Toxicology 333, 37-44 DOI: 10.1016/j.tox.2015.04.001

Citation Report

#	Article	IF	CITATIONS
1	Environmental Ligands of the Aryl Hydrocarbon Receptor and Their Effects in Models of Adult Liver Progenitor Cells. Stem Cells International, 2016, 2016, 1-14.	2.5	19
2	Effect of TCDD on the fate of epithelial cells isolated from human fetal palatal shelves (hFPECs). Toxicology and Applied Pharmacology, 2016, 305, 186-193.	2.8	14
3	2,3,7,8-Tetrachlorodibenzo-p-dioxin (TCDD)-mediated deregulation of myeloid and sebaceous gland stem/progenitor cell homeostasis. Archives of Toxicology, 2017, 91, 2295-2301.	4.2	13
4	2,3,7,8-Tetrachlorodibenzo-p-dioxin (TCDD) Disrupts Control of Cell Proliferation and Apoptosis in a Human Model of Adult Liver Progenitors. Toxicological Sciences, 2019, 172, 368-384.	3.1	9
5	Diesel exhaust particles inhibit lung branching morphogenesis via the YAP/TAZ pathway. Science of the Total Environment, 2023, 861, 160682.	8.0	0
6	AhR and Wnt/β-Catenin Signaling Pathways and Their Interplay. Current Issues in Molecular Biology, 2023, 45, 3848-3876.	2.4	4