

Abdominal and Pelvic Trauma: Misses and Misinterpretations Trauma/Emergency Radiology

Radiographics

37, 703-704

DOI: 10.1148/rg.2017160067

Citation Report

#	ARTICLE	IF	CITATIONS
1	Multi-modality imaging of the leaking ureter: why does detection of traumatic and iatrogenic ureteral injuries remain a challenge?. Emergency Radiology, 2017, 24, 417-422.	1.0	17
2	Pelvic Trauma: Vascular/Visceral. , 2018, , 461-474.		0
3	Errors in Emergency and Trauma Radiology. , 2019, , .		8
4	Mistakes in Emergency Imaging of Pregnant Patients. , 2019, , 195-206.		0
6	Imaging Evaluation of Abdominopelvic Gunshot Trauma. Radiographics, 2020, 40, 1766-1788.	1.4	12
7	Changes in Approach to Solid Organ Injury: What the Radiologist Needs to Know. Canadian Association of Radiologists Journal, 2020, 71, 352-361.	1.1	5
8	Imaging of blunt bowel and mesenteric injuries: Current status. European Journal of Radiology, 2020, 125, 108894.	1.2	11
9	Invited Commentary: Imaging and Management of Pancreatic Trauma. Radiographics, 2021, 41, 75-77.	1.4	0
10	Radiology and A Radiologist: A Keystone in the Turmoil of Trauma Setting. Cureus, 2021, 13, e14267.	0.2	0
11	CT Imaging and Management of Blunt Splenic Trauma: Lessons for Today and Tomorrow. Radiology, 2021, 299, 131-132.	3.6	4
12	Errors in Emergency and Trauma Radiology: General Principles. , 2019, , 1-16.		2
13	Expertise and Competence. , 2020, , 41-57.		0
15	Investigation of Radiation Risks Based on the Clinical Findings from Head CT Scans IN Trauma. Radiation Protection Dosimetry, 0, , .	0.4	0